LIUNA, also known as the Laborers District Council of Minnesota & North Dakota, was chartered in 1968 and is based in Saint Paul. The District Council has proudly served its members, families and retirees of five local Unions in Minnesota and North Dakota. Since 1968, LIUNA has negotiated collective bargaining agreements, enabled collective action, and organized its affiliated Local Unions. LIUNA members work in the construction industry, building Minnesota and North Dakota's roads, bridges, schools, hospitals and energy systems.

Today, LIUNA represents 12,679 skilled construction members as the "most progressive, aggressive, and fastest-growing union of construction workers," and is a leading Labor Organization for the transportation industry.
